7. The principles guidelines on sentencing provide that factors like being a first offender to determine the extent of the sentence including the circumstances of the offence in every case.
8. The court finds that the sentence of life imprisonment was extremely harsh in all the circumstances i.e. from 10 years to life the Petitioner has already served 13 years.
9. The prosecution did not oppose and even suggested court ordering the period served to be deemed adequate.
10. This court agrees with the same and orders that:

 - ii. The sentence of life is asset aside and substituted with the period already served.
 - iii. The Petitioner to be released forthwith.
11. It is so ordered.
