8th April, 2014 in the Election Petition Appeal No. 40 of 2013)*

Whether time for filing a supplementary record of appeal could be extended before the expiry of the prescribed time-frame

Reported by Beryl A Ikamari

Appellate jurisdiction-institution of appeals-institution of appeals at the Supreme Court-supplementary record of appeal-whether time for filing a supplementary record of appeal could be extended before the expiry of the prescribed time-frame-Supreme Court Rules, 2012, rules 33(1) & 33(6).

Brief facts

The applicant filed a record of appeal at the Supreme Court for purposes of an appeal touching on an election petition. However, certain documents, including the Court of Appeal judges' notes and a certified copy of the order of the Court of Appeal, were not included in the record of appeal. The applicant intended to include those documents in a supplementary record of appeal. While the applicant was allowed to file a supplementary record of appeal without leave of court within 15 days of lodging the record of appeal, the applicant anticipated that the documents would not be filed within the given time-frame. He sought leave to file a supplementary record of appeal despite the fact that there was still time to file the supplementary record of appeal without leave of court.

The gist of the Court of Appeal's decision, against which a Supreme Court appeal was being lodged, was that the Court of Appeal had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal as the record of appeal filed at the Court of Appeal did not include a certified decree and was therefore incomplete. The Court of Appeal ruled that the decree was a primary document which could not be included in the record via a supplementary record of appeal.

Issues

- i. Whether time for filing a supplementary record of appeal, at the Supreme Court, could be extended before the expiry of the prescribed time-frame.

Held

1. The applicant had failed to exercise due diligence in ensuring the record of appeal at the Court of Appeal was complete and in prosecuting the appeal.
2. In accordance with Rule 33(1) of the Supreme Court Rules, 2012, an appeal would be instituted at the Supreme Court by lodging the following documents at the registry within 30 days of filing the notice of appeal, namely;
  1. a petition of appeal
  2. a record of appeal; and
  3. the prescribed fee
1. The record of appeal would entail a complete bundle of documentation, including the pleadings, submissions and judgment from the lower court, without which the appellate court would be unable to determine the appeal. (Law Society of Kenya v Centre for Human Rights and Democracy & 12 others, Petition No 14 of 2013, Supreme Court of Kenya at Nairobi.)
2. Under rule 33(6) of the Supreme Court Rules, 2012, the applicant still had time to file a supplementary record of appeal without leave of court and it was inappropriate to apply for extension of time at that point. A party seeking extension of time to file an appeal under the stated rule 33 could only do so upon the expiry of the prescribed time.

RULING

A. Introduction

- 1 This is an application by way of Notice of Motion dated 8th May, 2014 under certificate of urgency seeking Orders from this Court to:
- 2 The applicant has filed a petition of appeal, Petition No.15 of 2014, dated 9th May, 2014, seeking to set aside the order the Court of Appeal dated 8th April 2014 in Civil Appeal No. 40 of 2013.
- 3 The brief background to this matter is that the applicant herein was a voter in Lamu County in the General Elections held on 4th March, 2013. He challenged the validity of the 3rd respondent's election as the Lamu County Women Representative in Malindi High Court Election Petition No. 7 of 2013. Muchemi J. determined that that the 3rd respondent was indeed validly elected as the Lamu County Women Representative. Aggrieved by that decision, he preferred an appeal to the Court of Appeal. The Court of Appeal dismissed the matter before hearing in on its merits. It upheld the respondents' preliminary objection that it did not have jurisdiction to hear the appeal, based on the mandatory provisions of Rule 87 1 of the Court of Appeal Rules, in view of the incompleteness of the record. Dissatisfied with that decision, he now seeks this Court's intervention.
- 4 On 12th May, 2014, Ibrahim SCJ having heard Counsel Mr. Aboubakar for the applicant, certified this application urgent. After directing the applicant to serve both the application and petition by 16th May, 2014 and allowing the respondent to file and serve their grounds of opposition if any, by 20th May, 2014, he ordered the parties to appear before a two-judge bench for an inter partes hearing for 21st May, 2014.
- 5 During the inter partes hearing, Counsel for the applicant made an oral application to amend the title of his matter from 'An intended Civil Appeal No. 20 of 2014' to 'Application No. 20 of 2014'. This was not opposed by Counsels for the respondents and the Court granted the amendment to the title to remove the words "intended civil appeal" and read as 'Application 20 of 2014'. As the petition filed by the applicant was petition 15 No. of 2014, the Court directed that the Notice of Motion was an interlocutory application within petition No. 15 of 2014. Counsel for the applicant also abandoned prayers 4-6 on the basis that they were preemptive.
- 6 The applicant's case, simply put, is that he is seeking leave to file a supplementary record of appeal to the record of appeal. This supplementary record of appeal will contain the Court of Appeal judges' notes and the certified copy of the Order of the Court of Appeal which the applicant has not yet obtained. Counsel submitted that Rule 33 6 of the Supreme Court Rules allowed them to file a supplementary record of appeal without leave of the Court within 15 days of the lodging of the record of appeal. He contended that they anticipated that the said documents could not be filed within 15 days as provided by the Rules. He submitted that as the record of appeal was lodged on 9th May 2014 and the 15 days will lapse on the 24th May 2014. Further, that the settling of terms is set for 3rd June, 2014 and the 15 days will have lapsed by that time. Counsel further submitted that the notice of appeal was filed on 10th April, 2014 and the Rules provided for the filing of the petition and record of appeal within 30 days from the date of filing the notice of appeal. He contended that the 30 day period expired on 10th May, 2014.

- 7 Mr. Khaseke for the 1st and 2nd respondent submitted that what the applicant was seeking at this juncture was speculative and premature as he could not seek leave to file documents that were not ready. Counsel contended that the appellant sought leave for an open ended period; he was not clear or certain on when he would file the supplementary record. He contended that based on the Supreme Court Rules, 2012, an appellant was required to file a supplementary record of appeal without the leave of the Court 30 days of the lodgement of the appeal. He submitted that in accordance to the period provided for in the Rules, the time frame expires on 9th of June 2014. As such, the applicant will still be within time to file a supplementary record of appeal without requiring the leave of the court. Counsel contended that even if it went beyond that, he would still be at liberty to seek the leave of the Court. He concluded that it was not the opportune time for the Court to hear the applicant's prayer.
- 8 Counsel for the 3rd respondent, Mr. Munyithya was also of the view that prayers 2 and 3 were not necessary at this stage and he adopted the position of his colleague Mr Khaseke in that respect. Counsel also submitted that there were two reasons why this prayer was unavailable to the applicant. Firstly because the applicant should have invoked the provisions of Rule 53 of the Supreme Court Rules for extension of time for filing his record of appeal if he did not have all the documents at the time of lodging the petition and the record of appeal. He contended that once the applicant filed a defective record of appeal, he could not appear before the court and ask for leave to file a supplementary record of appeal. He submitted that this court has pronounced itself in this aspect in the Law Society of Kenya v Centre for Human Rights and Democracy & 12 others 2014 eKLR. He contended that despite the law being categorical on the procedure to be followed, Counsel had gone astray the legal path. He contended that in the absence of an explanation for this, this prayer was thus not available.
- 9 Counsel contended that the second reason why this prayer was unavailable was that there was the assumption that the petition filed on the 9th of May, 2014 satisfied the conditions of Article 163 4 b of the Constitution. Counsel contended that it did not so petition 15 No. of 2014 which was the basis of this motion was filed without jurisdiction. He contended that it was not upon an applicant to judge for themselves that a petition falls under Article 163 4 b ; this could only be certified by the court.
10. Counsel submitted that counsel for the applicant was silent on what issue of constitutional application or interpretation was before this court. Counsel contended that the only issue which emanated from the Court of Appeal was the interpretation of Article 159 2 d . Counsel contended that the issue as to whether this provision deals with substantive or procedural law has already been determined by this Court in the Raila Odinga & 5 Others v Independent Electoral and Boundaries Commission & 3 others 2013 eKLR Raila Odinga decision . Counsel therefore submitted that as this was the route of the petition, it would serve no purpose to grant this prayer. Counsel contended that the application before the Court was fatally defective and that the appeal itself could not stand. He therefore urged the court to strike out petition, dismiss application with costs.
- 11 In response, Counsel for the applicant contended that Rule 53 of the Supreme Court Rules only applied if an applicant has filed within 30 days. Counsel contended that it was incorrect to state that they required an extension of time. Counsel submitted that they were before the Court due to the urgency of the appeal in case they were unable to get the documents on time-the 15 days granted under Rule 33 6 . On the issue of Article 159 of the Constitution, he contended that this was premature at this stage and Counsel for the respondent could only raise it at the hearing of the appeal. This notwithstanding, he asserted that Counsel for the respondent had already admitted that Article 159 was an issue for interpretation at the Court of Appeal and this fell squarely within the dictates of Article 163 4 a and the Supreme Court could now determine whether the Court of Appeal correctly applied the Raila Odinga decision.

B. Issues For Determination

- 12 Upon perusing the pleadings of the parties and upon hearing counsel for the parties we have extracted the following issues for determination:

C. Analysis

Statutory timelines on filing appeals in election disputes

- 13 The judgement of the High Court was delivered on 23rd September, 2013. The applicant being dissatisfied with that decision filed an appeal at the Court of Appeal Malindi on 23rd October 2013. A perusal of the record and a closer reading of the Court of Appeal ruling delivered on 8th April 2014 reveal that the record of appeal filed by the applicant was incomplete. It is clear that a complete record of appeal was not filed by the applicant despite being given several opportunities by the Court to do so. It is also clear that Counsel for the respondents raised a preliminary objection seeking to strike out the appeal on the ground that it was incompetent since the decree of the High Court in the record was not certified as required by Rule 87 1 of the Court of Appeal Rules, 2010.
- 14 Upon hearing submissions of counsel for all parties on the preliminary objection, the Court of Appeal delivered its ruling on 8th April, 2014. It held that it lacked jurisdiction to entertain the appeal since the failure by the appellant to include a certified decree was fatal to the appeal in view of the fact that a decree is a primary document that could not be included in the record by way of a supplementary record of appeal. The applicant then filed a notice of appeal at the Court of Appeal Malindi on 10th April, 2014 signifying his intention to appeal against the ruling of the Court of Appeal H.M. Okwengu, A.Makhandia and F. Sichale JJA dated 8th April 2014.
- 15 Article 87 1 of the Constitution provides that Parliament shall enact legislation to establish mechanisms for timely settling of electoral disputes. Article 105 2 of the Constitution stipulates that the High Court shall hear and determine an election petition within six months of the date of filing. Article 105 3 of the Constitution provides that Parliament shall enact legislation to give full effect to this Article. The framers of the Constitution intended that election disputes be determined within the shortest time possible without undue delay.

Prerequisites of filing an appeal at the Supreme Court

- 16 For a competent appeal to lie before this Court it must comply with the provisions of Rule 33 1 of the Supreme Court Rules, 2012 which provides that:

An appeal to the Court shall be instituted by lodging in the registry within thirty days of the date of filing of the notice of appeal—

- a a petition of appeal;
- b a record of appeal; and
- c the prescribed fee.

Rule 33 2 , 3 and 4 further provide for the specific documents that must be contained in the record of appeal for it to be complete.

17. This Court has pronounced itself on what an appeal is in the case of Law Society of Kenya versus Centre for Human Rights and Democracy & Others, Supreme Court Petition 14 of 2013. This Court held at paragraph 36, that:

The use of the word ‘shall’ in Rule 33 1 suggests the mandatory nature of the rule, requiring strict adherence to the components of the rule. Thus, a strict reading of rule 33 1 leads to the conclusion that an appeal comprises the Petition of Appeal, the Record of Appeal, and the prescribed fee.

It further held, at paragraph 38 and 39, that:

The Record of Appeal is the complete bundle of documentation, including the pleadings, submissions, and judgment from the lower Court, without which the appellate Court would not be able to determine the appeal before it.

- 39 If an intending appellant were to present the Court with a Notice and Petition of Appeal, but without the Record of Appeal, and expect the Court to determine “the appeal” on the basis of these two, such an appeal would be incomplete and hence incompetent. Indeed this is the gist of Rule 33 1 of the Supreme Court Rules.

Rule 33 6 provides that:

Where a document referred to in sub-rules 3 and 4 is omitted from the record of appeal the appellant may within fifteen days of lodging the record of appeal, without leave, include the document in a supplementary record of appeal.

Rule 53 is also instructive on extension of time. It stipulates that:

The Court may extend the time limited by these Rules, or by any decision of the Court.

- 18 In the present case, the applicant has moved this Court to extend time to file a Supplementary Record of Appeal out of time. The striking aspect of this Application is that time has not yet lapsed. The Applicant is only apprehensive that time might lapse before he files the Supplementary Record of Appeal. There is a status conference scheduled for 3rd June, 2014 to settle the terms of the Order of the Court of Appeal. If all factors remain constant, then time lapses on 9th June, 2014. It is evident that, pursuant to Rule 33 6 the applicant is still within time to file a supplementary record of appeal without leave of the Court. We are inclined not to speculate. Courts of law litigate on factual issues. The Courts look at facts. Courts will not engage in mitigating apprehensive causes and speculations. We find that this is not the appropriate time to apply for extension of time since time is still running. A party seeking extension of time to file an appeal pursuant to Rule 33 can only do so upon expiry of the prescribed time. This Court will not extend time before expiry of the stipulated time.

D. Orders

- 19 Upon considering the application and after hearing the representations of Counsel we make the following orders:
1. The application dated 8th May, 2014 is hereby dismissed.
  2. The applicant shall bear the costs of this application.
